But in our contemporary liquid-modern world, culture has lost its missionary role and has become a means of seduction: it seeks no longer to enlighten the people but to seduce them. The function of culture today is not to satisfy existing needs but to create new ones, while simultaneously ensuring that existing needs remain permanently unfulfilled.

In Culture in a Liquid Modern World, renowned Polish sociologist Zygmunt Bauman offers insightful meditations on the devolution of culture from tool for the cultivation of human potential to insipid product of base consumerism. This devolution is fueled, Bauman argues, by the same untethered global market forces that tear people from their places of origin, spitting them out as migrants far from home with no chance of return.

Late modernity is the characterization of today's highly developed global societies as the continuation of modernity rather than as an element of the succeeding era known as postmodernity, or the postmodern. Introduced as "liquid" modernity by the Polish-British sociologist Zygmunt Bauman, late modernity is marked by the global capitalist economies with their increasing privatization of services and by the information revolution.
