The First Epistle of Clement is a letter addressed to the Christians in the city of Corinth. Based on internal evidence the letter was composed some time before AD 70. The common time given for the epistle's composition is at the end of the reign of Domitian and AD 140, most likely around 96. It ranks with Didache as one of the earliest—if not the earliest—of extant Christian documents outside the canonical New Testament. As the name suggests, a Second Epistle of Clement is known, but ...
